Move To Rescind ERA Vote Apparently Dead

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The move to rescind Kentucky's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment appears to be dead on this final day of the 1976 legislative session.

But the rescission movement — dubbed a "Lazarus" by some legislators for its propensity to resurrect from the committee graveyard — could still be revived if the House votes to suspend its rules.

Friday and Saturday were set aside for consideration of amendments only and the rescission measure is in the form of a bill.

A move by anti-ERA forces to suspend House rules failed Friday by a 48-35 vote and Rep. Lloyd Clapp, D-Wingo, conceded defeat.

Clapp had attempted to suspend the rules Thursday night but after an hour of parliamentary maneuvering agreed to adjourn at the House Majority Leader's request.

The House leadership managed to secure the votes by Friday to prevent consideration of the rescission measure.

Anti-ERA forces had been successful in getting a rescission resolution approved by the House but the measure was stalled in a Senate committee and attempts to dislodge it failed.

The issue appeared to have been laid to rest for this session when the Senate approved a proposed constitutional amendment to place ERA on the ballot in the November 1977 election.

But then a House committee, in a surprise move this week, substituted the language of the original resolution for the proposed referendum.

On the last official day in which bills could be considered, the House took action on other measures in a last-minute effort to wrap up the 1976 legislative session.

Rotary Members Hear Jesse Stuart Readings

Members of the Murray Rotary Club were treated with a program of readings from the writings of Jesse Stuart, Kentucky's renowned writer and poet, at their regular weekly meeting Thursday.

Presenting the readings was Miss Katie Paschall, a graduate student in communications at Murray State University from Puryear, Tenn., and recipient of the first Jesse Stuart Fellowship to be awarded by the University in honor of the writer.

Miss Paschall, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfred Paschall of Puryear, read "Kentucky Is My Land," the chapter from Stuart's book, "My World," dealing with Murray and the Jackson Purchase, and four of his poems: "Two Kinds of Young Birdlanders," "I'm Not Your Hero," "Synthetic Heroes," and "Intersession."

Miss Paschall also will present two other programs of readings from Stuart's works Wednesday, March 24, in the Farrell Recital Hall of the Fine Arts Center—one at 10 a.m. and another at 8:30 p.m. The program is entitled "Recollections of a Kentucky Mountain Childhood." There is no charge, and the public is invited.

Among the guests at the meeting were the two recipients of the club's 1976-77 scholarships to Murray State University: Bill Bailey, a senior at Murray High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bailey, Route 8, and Kevin Penick, a senior at Calloway County High School and son of Rev. and Mrs. Leon Penick, Route 2.

Other guests included Steve Linn, a visiting Rotarian from Benton, and Al Wilson, Jackson, Tenn.

Jerry Mac Burkeen Overcomes Difficulties On MSU Campus

By DWAIN MCINTOSH

For four years after graduation as the valedictorian of the 1968 class at Calloway County High School, Jerry Mac Burkeen of Almo Route 1 laid out of school at home and fought boredom while pondering his future.

Confined to a wheelchair by polio that struck him as an infant, he yearned to go to college. But he and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Burkeen, had nagging doubts that he could make it on a campus.

His ranking at the top of a high school class of 135 graduates left no question of his academic promise. Yet his life was virtually stalled by his handicap and the uncertainty of whether he had the mobility to keep pace with college routine.

"Most of all, accessibility was the hang-up—because without elevators and ramps where I need them, there was no way for me to get around," Burkeen recalled. "So I stayed at home and just about drove my parents crazy."

He took two correspondence courses, but really held out little hope that he could go beyond college by mail. Not satisfied with his inactivity, Burkeen worked three summers addressing envelopes for a local business and tried selling light bulbs by telephone.

But that effort to stay busy was simply not enough for the young man with the mind that would not lie dormant. Now he quips that his most exciting moment during those years was "finding out who the Hollywood Square was every day."

Then the old hope of college was revived when the Alumni Association at Murray State University offered him the first Ralph H. Woods Scholarship for the 1972-73 school year. He was "raring to go."

Even yet, however, the decision was not instantaneous. His parents remained far more cautious. Discussion with Joe Dick of Murray, an Alumni Council member who has been active in many facets of the alumni program, and Mancil Vinson, director of alumni affairs, persuaded them that assistance would be available for Jerry and that the physical obstacles were not insurmountable.

Encouragement from the state Bureau of Rehabilitation office on the campus was also instrumental in helping the family to make the difficult decision—and young Burkeen finally got the go-ahead to go to college.

Before he enrolled, however, he had some second thoughts of his own.

"As the time grew near for me to begin, I became a little skeptical because of the unknowns ahead of me." Then with a grin, he added a postscript to his confession: "But I never told anybody how I felt because I didn't want to raise all those doubts again. I had to give it a try."

He chose to study accounting because he knew his career would have to be office work and because he recognized that his aptitude and interest in mathematics were a perfect fit for his circumstances.

His record, as he hears graduation this summer, verifies that Burkeen and his parents made a wise decision. His academic standing is 3.94 of a possible 4.00 and will earn him Summa Cum Laude honors in August.

Yet his achievement does not end with near-perfect grades. He was selected earlier this year for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" and has been an active member of the Accounting Society on the campus. His other awards include outstanding sophomore in accounting and co-winner with two other students last year of the Price-Waterhouse Accountancy Award.

Nor does the Jerry Mac Burkeen story end with recognitions. As he has progressed in his studies and his activities, he has also refused to surrender to the idea that he must be totally dependent.

After the rehabilitation office had hired someone to push him about the campus his first three years, he has made it on his own during his senior year except in bad weather.

A problem he had for several years that also required assistance was getting his wheelchair in and out of the car he has driven since it was equipped with special hand controls for him in 1968.

(See Burkeen, Page 12)

EXERCISE IN INDEPENDENCE—Jerry Mac Burkeen of Almo Route 1, who will be graduated from Murray State University in August with highest honors, begins the process of loading his wheelchair into his hand-controlled car after a day of classes. He spent two hours at home alone one day mastering the technique of loading and unloading the wheelchair into his car so that he would not be totally dependent on others.

The new olympic-size swimming pool at the Murray-Calloway County Park is now 80 per cent completed. Opening date for the facility is scheduled for around the first of June.

New Pool To Be Open By June

Sparkling water, people, swim-meets and fun for the citizens of Murray and Calloway County, and that is just part of what the new City-County Park will offer. Three pools and a bath house are being built for the enjoyment of young and old alike.

According to Gary Hohman, park director, the three pools are 80 per cent complete with final completion set for the middle of May and opening for the first of June. Working in conjunction with the American Red Cross a "Learn to Swim" program will be offered. This program will include a "Mother and Tot" group, beginning, intermediate and advanced swimming plus courses in life-saving.

A twenty-five meter L-shaped olympic pool will have seven competition lanes and a diving area with both low and high diving boards. The training pool is 30 by 40 feet and ranges in depth from two and one half to three and one half feet. Toddlers will find the infant pool made to order complete with a spray fountain in the center. The dimensions of this pool are 20 by 20 feet and its depth ranges from 12 to 18 inches.

Crime Prevention Program Is Begun Through Judge's Office

In order to aid the efforts of local law enforcement officials, Calloway County Judge Robert O. Miller has announced a supplementary plan in crime prevention.

Ann Kelly Ellis and Danny Patterson, both of Murray, are working on a crime prevention program promoted through the Calloway County Judge's Office. In addition, Ellis and Patterson are in charge of publicity for various city and county government-related projects. However, their primary concern is the crime prevention program.

Ann Kelly and Patterson have visited various club groups throughout Murray and Calloway County where they present guidelines on common sense methods to combat crime. The aspects of the program include such areas as how to prevent car theft; home security; what measures to follow to secure your home when you leave for extended times; guidelines for personal safety; and "Do's and Don'ts" for the safety of children.

Patterson begins the program by explaining "Operation Identification" and the advantages and values the project has in preventing home burglaries. Ellis also presents a program by previewing briefly a new statewide crime prevention entitled "Neighborhood Watch".

According to Patterson the program has met with favorable response. "We can only assume that the groups to which we have spoken have found the program worthwhile as we've had nothing but positive feedback in the form of interpersonal interaction and group discussion," Ellis added that, "the crime prevention program is beneficial to all the citizens as it serves to reassert in the people's mind the basic common sense crime preventive methods that we tend to forget."

Calloway County Judge Robert O. Miller explained that the program was designed as an informative-type program to make the public more aware of simple measures to incorporate in their day-to-day routine so as to prevent crime. "The basic intent is to provide measures to keep the crime from ever occurring in the first place," said Miller. He continued by saying, "Of course, we are realistic: we can't expect to eradicate crime 100 per cent, but we can provide the effort through programs like this to at least lessen the opportunity or situation which might accommodate a car theft, a purse snatcher, home burglary, or a rape incident."

Ellis, 25, is a native of Murray. She attended Central Texas College and Murray State University. She currently serves as Vice President of the Kentucky Young Democrats, and is a member of the Calloway County Democratic Executive Committee. Ann Kelly also serves on the Manpower Task Force of the Purchase Area Development District. She resides in Murray with her 4 year old daughter, Allison.

Patterson, a 23 year old native of Princeton, Kentucky, received his Bachelor's Degree in Speech and History from Murray State University in 1974. He completed his Master's Degree in Communications at Murray State at the conclusion of the Fall 1975 semester.

All persons who are interested in the crime prevention program can call the Calloway County Judge's Office by dialing 753-2920.

Bill Of Rights For Teachers Underlined

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A kind of bill of rights for public schoolteachers has been underlined in a Kentucky Supreme Court decision.

The high court ruled unanimously Friday that teachers and school employees cannot be demoted or transferred for their political opinions or affiliations.

The case involved seven persons in the Rowan County school system who successfully supported Dr. Warren Proudfoot for a school board post against opposition of Supt. Clifford Cassidy.

The result for the 1970-71 school year, according to Supreme Court Justice Pleas Jones:

"Cassidy held the hand that played the game—the teachers were poor pawns to be transferred or demoted at his pleasure."

"All he had to do was to recommend the transfers and demotions to the individual members of the Board of Education."

"Like puppets, four of the members voted to assist Cassidy in his vendetta against the teachers and employees."

Jones said in the unanimous opinion the legislature specifically sought to prevent this type of political reprisal through a statute.

In the current case, he said, the superintendent would only say as the general reason for punishments of the teachers that it was "for the betterment of the school system."

"If the primary reason for making the transfers as found by the trial court was to punish ... for political activities, then such action was arbitrary and void," the high court said.

"Simply because the superintendent could have been otherwise motivated by some proper purpose does not mean that these other purposes played a real part in his decision to make the transfers. The trial court could not breathe new life into an otherwise void and arbitrary action."

The lower court had dismissed the claims of Bill Calhoun, Marvin Moore, Mabel Alfrey and James Botts. The Supreme Court reversed this.

The lower court had found the transfers of Brenda Wells and Warren Cooper without any valid motive and ordered their return. The high court upheld this.

Roger Eldridge, the seventh person involved, abandoned his claim before the trial.

New Board Members Named By Chamber

New board members have been named for the Murray Chamber of Commerce, according to Executive Secretary James Johnson.

Named to the board of directors, in the heaviest vote in recent years, were Joe Dick, president of the Bank of Murray; Ed Shinnars, of Vanderbilt Chemical Co.; Dr. Harry Sparks, president emeritus of Murray State University; Bill Barker, general manager of the Murray Electric System; and Guy Billington.

The members were selected out of 121 nominees, with the results tabulated by Richardson and Trevathan accounting firm, and Tim Scruggs. They succeed Dr. A. H. Kopperud, Grayson McClure, Max Hurt, Leonard Vaughn, and Glenn Doran.

Send Ex's Family a Separate Invitation

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a terrible quandary. We are having a formal affair for my son's bar mitzvah. My brother and his wife recently separated and are living apart. I don't know whether they will eventually patch up their differences or go through with the divorce.

Should I invite my sister-in-law? We always got along well, and I am very fond of her. Should I send her and my brother separate invitations at their respective addresses? And how about her parents? I like them, too.

IN A QUANDARY

DEAR IN: Send a separate invitation to your sister-in-law and also one to her parents, and let them decide whether or not to accept.

DEAR ABBY: I am amazed at your chauvinistic put-down of women who accept attentions from married men. You fail to mention the men who pester married women, often without any encouragement.

And what about the wife who treats her husband like a second-class citizen and refuses sex, but is hurt and martyred when he finds another woman with whom to share love and companionship?

Many unhappy marriages have been saved by the "other woman," who provides a much-needed oasis for the unhappy married man and sends him back to his wife refreshed and renewed.

It's time wives assumed some of the responsibility for the reason their husbands stray. It's also time that we face the horrible truth that wives also stray with "cruel, inconsiderate, stupid and short-sighted" MALES.

FOR EQUALITY

DEAR FOR EQUALITY: If a marriage must be "saved" by the "other woman" [or the "other man"] who provides a "much-needed oasis" and sends the lover home "refreshed and renewed," I think all concerned should take a good, hard look at the marriage. Such marriages are for masochists.

DEAR ABBY: A waitress signed WANTS TO PLEASE wrote a long list of complaints against customers. The one that irritated me the most was, "Please do not summon the waitress by snapping your fingers, whistling or hollering, 'Hey, Girlie!'"

Now I have a question. I eat in restaurants often, and I have a terrible time getting the attention of my waitress.

What is the correct procedure? I have tried the following: Signaling silently to any waitress whose eye I catch, hoping she will fill my water glass or coffee cup, or bring me my check. She gives me a stony look and says, "This isn't my station!"

Then I ask, "Will you please tell the waitress whose station this IS that I would like some attention?"

She doesn't say yes, no or go jump in the lake. She just walks away.

I have waited so long for my waitress that I have actually gotten up from my chair and have gone looking for her! If you have any suggestions for getting a waitress' attention when she is busy making eyes at the bartender or in the kitchen gabbing with the help back there, please let me have it. I have even become so disgusted that I have started for the door. THEN someone runs after me with my check. Perhaps that is the way to get attention.

DISGUSTED IN CHICAGO

DEAR DISGUSTED: Perhaps! (P.S. Meanwhile, easy, man. You sound like a candidate for a coronary.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 21, 1976

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)

Entrust your affairs only to the trustworthy if you MUST put them in other hands but, where possible, handle what you can yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21)

Don't let unexpected situations dismay you. Prevent them from crossing you up by being your usual philosophical self and stressing good management.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)

A day in which you can really allow your imagination free rein. New ideas, generated by fine Mercury influences, can be immensely beneficial to your career.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)

Don't leave things to chance. Here is a time for reviewing with an eye toward tightening up action, making plans for the coming week.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)

Tread warily, to avoid needless errors and rubbing others the wrong way. Tact and understanding will do a great deal to keep matters running smoothly.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Avoid a tendency toward pessimism. Why assume that things will not work out? Couple your lively imagination with your innate practicality, and you can get around almost any situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

If faced with a "sticky" problem, face up to it squarely, analyze carefully and you will readily reach a solution. A day when keen judgment will pay off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23)

An energetic ally may come to your support, personally or financially. Push all worthwhile aims. Especially favored: outdoor pursuits, cultural interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24 to Dec. 21)

Whether your day is to be devoted to many duties and little play or vice versa, your attitude must be hopeful and consistent if you would succeed. Romance favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A better day than you may think at first, but it will need your help in order to bring out its hidden opportunities. Just one admonition: Be discreet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Mixed influences. Keep on your toes. There's a special need for adaptability and efficiency—also a sense of humor!

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Admonitions for this day: Do not complicate situations which are involved enough already, and DO be careful not to antagonize others.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a great spirit of enterprise, a gregarious personality and outstanding ingenuity. You are ambitious and strive hard to attain your goals, but sometimes are too materialistic in your aims. For you, the reward for effort is more important than the effort itself. Try to find more joy in the means of achievement. You would make an excellent business leader, educator, musician or politician. Birthdate of: Johann S. Bach, composer.

COOKING IS FUN

LUNCHBOX FARE
 Ham and Cheese Sandwiches
 Brownstone Front Beverage
BROWNSTONE FRONT
 1/2 cup cocoa
 1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
 1 large egg
 1 cup sifted flour
 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
 1/2 teaspoon salt

In the top of a double boiler over boiling water, stirring constantly, cook together until smooth the cocoa, 1/2 cup of the sugar and 1/2 cup of the milk. Cream the butter with remaining sugar and the vanilla; beat in the egg, then the cocoa mixture. Sift together the flour, baking soda and salt; stir in, alternately with remaining milk, just until smooth. Bake in a buttered 11 by 7 by 1 1/4-inch baking pan in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—20 to 25 minutes. Turn out and cool; cover with Butterscotch Frosting. (This old-fashioned cake is adapted from "Aromas and Flavors" by Alice B. Toklas, Harper, 1958).

Sensing The News

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
Executive Vice President
United States Industrial Council

HARRIGAN

TODAY'S TOPIC: BLINDING AMERICA

Is the United States fated to be a blind giant groping its way through the dangers of the next decade?

Thoughtful citizens who have followed the scandalous activities of the Church and Pike Committees are likely to reply in the affirmative to that question — unless Congress and the public wakes to the damage being done to U. S. intelligence agencies.

Anyone who wants to understand the extent of the damage should read Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham's special report "U. S. Intelligence At The Crossroads" published by the authoritative United States Strategic Institute (Box 8100, Boston, Mass. 02114; $1.75). Gen. Graham, recently director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, declared his intention to retire when the dismissal of Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger was announced in November. For 16 years, Gen. Graham held a wide variety of positions in the intelligence field.

In his report, Gen. Graham warns that "the damage done in the past year to U. S. intelligence" is "enormous." He adds that the "losses have been severe and will increase."

The general rightly states that "Both babbling bureaucracy and irresponsible press share the blame for the hemorrhage of leaks in the public media." He points out that the country must make the laws which protect its intelligence sources enforceable. "Until this is done," he warns, "the United States will remain a powerful giant, gradually going blind for lack of intelligence information."

In this year of national decision-making, it is imperative to pin-point the blame for the damage done to U. S. intelligence — damage which endangers the lives of the American people.

Gen. Graham doesn't pull any punches. He states that Sen. Frank Church and Rep. Otis Pike have made pious speeches about the continuing need of intelligence, but they seem unable to resist the urge to defame intelligence people — and endanger their lives — if it seems politically acceptable to do so.

The former director of the DIA notes that "Church could have published only the findings without all the masses of detail containing the names of the men involved." Sen. Church's insistence on publishing names cost the life of a CIA bureau chief in Greece.

Gen. Graham observes that "For decades the government has relied for security of state secrets on a sort of honor system in the Legislative and Executive Branches of Government. Generally, bureaucrats and legislators kept their mouths shut and newsmen tended to respect the obligations of the government spokesmen as well as the right of the government to have some state secrets."

But all this has vanished with the rise of what Gen. Graham calls "the anti-establishment syndrome." The restraints that made the system work have been shattered. For example, Daniel Schorr, a reporter for CBS, recently passed a secret House of Representatives intelligence report to the radical Village Voice, though the House had determined to withhold the report because of the national secrets it contained.

These are tragic developments, for a free society depends on restraint and respect for considerations of national security. Without effective restraints such as Gen. Graham describes, a free society is helpless in dealing with totalitarian enemies such as the Soviet Union and Communist China.

The real need, therefore, is not complicated new oversight arrangements for the intelligence agencies, though Gen. Graham has specific recommendations for improvements, but a fresh determination on the part of the public not to allow opportunistic politicians to endanger the American people by crippling the information-gathering systems of the CIA, DIA, and National Security Agency.

ART

The mysterious smile of Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa may have been the result of congenital facial palsy, says a Danish children's physician. Dr. Finn Beaker-Christiansen of Copenhagen's National Hospital put forward the theory in an article in a medical journal. He said the theory is based on a survey of seven cases of the affliction which affects the mimic muscles. The Danish physician said the Mona Lisa's smile is a movement of only the left corner of the mouth while the rest of the face is calm.

Illustrator Oliver Herford was so determined to seclude himself when he was working that he would not disclose the address of his studio to even his closest friends. Sooner or later, however, someone would chance upon it. When that happened, Herford did not pledge the intruder to secrecy. He would pack as soon as the other departed and move to another studio. (Toledo Blade)

Every museum director is haunted by those bequests that have slipped through his fingers, recalls John Walker, former director of the National Gallery. "One evening at dinner, I was seated next to the president of a small college, who thanked me for all I had done for his institution. I was puzzled, as I had only vaguely heard of his school. He asked me whether I remembered a certain New York banker who had given the National Gallery a portrait of George Washington. I did indeed, and I told him the picture had been on loan to the White House for some time. Mr. Truman had asked for it and I had written the banker to find out whether he minded if we made the loan. He had agreed and I had not heard from him since. 'That,' said my dinner companion, 'is the reason for my thanks. The banker got in touch with me and told me he had intended to leave a bequest to the National Gallery. But since they were idiotic enough to lend his picture to 'that man', he took them out of his will and gave us the money for a new art building.'"

OSHA: The Iron Hand Of Welfare

By H. C. Gordon
U. S. Industrial Council

Half a century ago, a noted Supreme Court Justice — remembered today as an outstanding liberal — warned us that we should be most on our guard whenever the government seeks to provide for our welfare. "Men born to freedom," he declared, "are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberties by evil-minded rulers. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachments by men of zeal; well-meaning but without understanding."

If that warning ever needed a textbook example to prove its validity, there could be no better choice than the present Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Created by Congress in 1970 for the commendable purpose of improving worker safety, OSHA has since emerged as a classic case of regulatory overkill: an expensive and counterproductive federal agency whose chief accomplishment thus far has been to menace our national liberty and prosperity.

No one is opposed to greater job safety, but it is dubious, to say the least, that the methods adopted by OSHA constitute the best approach toward that end. To begin with, the regulations issued by the agency are masterpieces of confusion. Not only do they run to hundreds of pages of fine print, but they are technical to the point of using trigonometric equations to define "ladder" and "exit." It is, in short, scarcely possible for the average employer to understand the regulations, much less comply with them.

Furthermore, OSHA officials are not permitted to advise employers as to the proper way of meeting the regulations. Employers must guess at their meaning, and woe betide them if they guess wrong. The enforcement procedures authorized by Congress are more appropriate to a police state than a democracy.

Under the law, an OSHA inspector can descend on any business in the country — unannounced and without a search warrant, conduct his own investigation, decide for himself if the regulations have been violated, and levy what he considers an appropriate fine. Should the employer choose to contest the fine through courts, he may do so, but OSHA has the power to increase the fine if he does.

In other words, OSHA — for the first time in the history of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence — combines the offices of policeman, prosecutor, judge, jury, and bailiff in the person of a single government agent. This practice may actually be unconstitutional and is currently being challenged before the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, it is costing the taxpayer millions of dollars to enforce OSHA regulations, and private businesses pay many millions more to comply with them. The result: higher taxes, higher prices for consumers, and only minimal improvement in worker safety.

The crowning irony of this whole incredible situation is that despite its sweeping coercive powers, OSHA has failed to discharge its original mandate. According to a study just released by the American Enterprise Institute, the available data reveals that OSHA has effectively decreased the accident rate for American manufacturing industries by less than one per cent.

Think of it! A powerful new bureaucracy created to guarantee safe working conditions, the Bill of Rights side-stepped, millions of dollars spent — and practically nothing accomplished.

Was OSHA even necessary in the first place? Possibly not. Before OSHA was created, private businesses — by no means unaware that safety is also profitable — employed 35,000 safety experts of their own. That figure, incidentally, is five times the number of inspectors currently employed by OSHA.

Should the task of improving worker safety then be returned to private hands? It is a legitimate question. But whatever the answer may be, there must be a better alternative to OSHA.

New 'Guide' Will Help U. S. Consumers

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs,
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

The Federal Government has an array of agencies and departments that are available to help you. The question is how to find and contact the right one?

The answer is probably in the Guide to Federal Consumer Services—a new directory that the Office of Consumer Affairs has published. It lists all the Federal Government's consumer programs. The Guide gives a description of what the agencies and departments do to help consumers and directs you where to go and whom to write or call if you need help with a particular problem.

The Guide lists 36 departments and agencies in the Federal Government that provide some kind of consumer service:

—If you need more information about banking and financial practices, the Guide recommends contacting the Office of Saver and Consumer Affairs, Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C. 20551.

—For help with mortgages, the Guide lists the Office of Housing and Urban Affairs, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, as a place to start.

—If you have housing problems or just need more information, the Guide suggests contacting the Special Assistant to the Secretary, Housing and Urban Development Department, Washington, D.C. 20410, for help.

—To answer questions about your Social Security benefits, first call your local Social Security office, listed in your local telephone book. Then, if you still have problems, you can contact the Division of Public Inquiries, Social Security Administration, 6401 Security Blvd., Baltimore, Md. 21235.

For a complete listing of all the Federal agencies that exist to help you, you may want your own copy of the Guide. It is available free by writing to Guide, Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Letter to the Editor

Proud Of Deputies

Dear Editor,
As a tax paying resident of the county and a subscriber of The Ledger and Times, I am writing concerning an article on the front page of the March 11 edition in regard to the robbery of Cook's Jewelry Store. Have we reached a level in our society that the robbers receive more attention and publicity than the arresting officers? The names of the armed robbers were listed in this story, but there was no mention of the two deputies that risked their lives in a high speed car chase and confrontation of deadly weapons in order to make the arrest.

I for one am proud that we in the county have two fine deputies as David Balentine and Gerald Boyd in the sheriff's department. If this appears in the paper then at least the residents of this county will see the devotion of these peace officers concerning their jobs, and they will get the recognition they deserve.

Let's Stay Well

The Uncooperative Child

By F.J.L. Blasingame, M.D.

Suppose you're alone with your small child. He isn't well and needs to have his medicine put in his eyes, ears, or nose.

You may be tempted to forego the prescribed treatment because of your frustration and the anticipated struggle associated with giving the medicine.

In a recent issue of the Journal of Pediatric Ophthalmology, Philip Diorio, M.D., and Richard Ober, M.D., of the Los Angeles County — University of Southern California Medical Center, describe a technique that is effective and fairly simple. It allows one person to be able to carry out treatment on a vigorous, uncooperative youngster.

The procedure has the advantage of freeing both hands to apply the medicine.

With the medication close by, the child is placed on his back between your legs with his head between your upper thighs. The child's arms are held down under your lower limbs with your feet crossed loosely over the child's feet.

While the child can make some movements, his upturned face allows you to open his eyelid with one hand and drop the medicine safely into his eye with the other. Nose drops or ear drops may be instilled in a like manner.

Such a procedure is less distressing than wrapping a wiggly child in a sheet to restrain him before treatment.

By carefully handling the child and not restraining him too snugly, he should not be made excessively fearful of the treatment, particularly if he is reassured ahead of time and spoken to gently while the medicine is given.

The entire procedure should take but a few minutes. After it is over, the child should be rewarded with compliments and affection.

Q: Mr. A.R. asks whether multiple myeloma is a form of cancer.

A: Multiple myeloma is a cancer or a malignancy of one variety (plasma cells) of white blood corpuscles which arise in the bone marrow. Bone pain, loss of calcium from the bones in localized, multiple areas, and fractures often take place. While the outlook is generally unfavorable, certain drugs (Cytoxan and Melfalan) may delay the progress of the disease and bring about long periods of remission.

Q: Mrs. G.S. wants to know whether measles vaccine gives lasting protection for the remainder of one's life.

A: It is too early after the original introduction of measles vaccine to be certain about how long the protection lasts. Recent studies were made on approximately 300 children who were vaccinated eight years ago with the live measles vaccine. The results, reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association, showed that immunity levels had fallen dramatically. Additional studies will be required to see whether booster shots of the vaccine should be routinely recommended. They have generally been thought unnecessary.

Shinners Serves Senate Passes Stringent Measure On Mine Safety

E. M. Shinners, Vice President and General Manager of Vanderbilt Chemical - Murray Division has recently returned from Los Angeles, California where, at the invitation of the National Science Foundation, he served on a panel reviewing and evaluating projects submitted to the National Science Foundation by Colleges and Universities under the Comprehensive Assistance to Undergraduate Science Education Program.

The panel meetings took place at the Biltmore Hotel and extended over a three day period from March 10th through March 12th.

The CAUSE program's goal is the improvement in the quality and effectiveness of undergraduate science education in institutions of higher education.

The Vanderbilt Manager was one of 21 industry representatives from around the country invited to participate in the evaluation program.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Senate has passed a stringent mine safety bill designed to protect miners from disasters similar to last week's mine explosions in Owen Fork that killed 26 men.

All of Kentucky's underground mines would be classified as "gassy," under the bill approved Thursday, meaning methane gas can be found inside the mine.

There are about 30 mines in Kentucky below the water table that are especially susceptible to methane gas buildups, according to State Sen. Bert Ed Pollitte, D-Harlan. The deadly gas has no odor, cannot be seen, and can explode under some circumstances when mixed with oxygen.

Methane was blamed as the cause of both explosions at the Scotia Coal Co.'s Black Mountain Mine in Owen Fork last week.

Pollitte said most of the victims killed in the twin disasters were residents of his district.

His amendment to the mine safety bill passed earlier by the House would require that inspections be made more frequently in all mines susceptible to buildups of methane gas.

The bill now goes back to the House for concurrence in the Senate amendment.

Pollitte said he wanted his amendment, backed by Gov. Julian Carroll, to require that all gassy mines be checked on a daily basis for methane gas. But he said there simply are not enough mine inspectors in Kentucky to do that.

The proposed state law would require inspections "as often as practical whenever any danger to workmen is indicated by a previous inspection."

The measure would require that all gassy mines be inspected by two inspectors whenever danger is suspected.

"The inspectors shall locate themselves in different sections of the mine in order to determine the effectiveness and reliability of the ventilation system," Pollitte said, reading the amendment.

Pollitte said that it was possible that only one inspector would fail to detect a methane buildup. But, he said, it would be unlikely that two men in different areas would not find a methane buildup if one existed.

In August of 1914 in World War I, Allied and German pilots and observers started shooting at each other with pistols and rifles with negligible results.

Regular Services Planned Sunday At Sinking Spring

Regular services will be held at Sinking Spring Baptist Church on Sunday, March 21, at eleven a. m. and 6:45 p. m. with Bro. Lawson Williamson, pastor, as the speaker.

The Adult Choir, directed by Tommy Scott with Mrs. Scott at the piano and Mrs. Jim Neale at the organ, will sing a special, "Wings of Prayer."

Jim Neale, serving as deacon of the week, will read the scripture and lead in prayer during the morning service.

The Youth Choir will meet at 5:30 p. m. for practice and will sing in the evening service.

Sunday School will be at ten a. m. and Church Training at six p. m.

Nursery workers will be Kay Vasseur, Mrs. Arle Wilkerson, Mrs. Kathleen Paschall, Mrs. Mildred Crawford, Mrs. Leta Rutland, and Mrs. Kathryn Starks.

Revival Services To Be, Oak Grove

Revival services at the Oak Grove Baptist Church will be held starting Monday, March 22, and continuing through Saturday, March 27.

Rev. Jerry Lee, pastor of the West Fork Baptist Church, will be the evangelist for the services to be held at 7:30 each evening.

The church pastor, Rev. Otis Jones, urges the public to attend.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR MONDAY, MARCH 22, 1976

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)

You may face some unexpected opposition, but keep temper even. Congeniality and a philosophical outlook will keep things going smoothly. Gains possible.

TAURUS

(Apr. 21 to May 21)

Whatever your plans, take into account new trends and ideas, changing maneuvers which could affect your endeavors and strategy. This will be important to outcomes.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Curb an impulse to undertake enterprises you would not ordinarily consider. Stellar influences suggest that you stick to routine, avoid recklessness of any sort.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Avoid any urge to take foolish chances, but do not be so hesitant about the "different" that you lose a golden opportunity. Foresight needed.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

A day in which to make new starts — in new directions; to lead rather than follow. Stellar influences favor all pioneering efforts.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Don't be coerced into anything that seems at all inappropriate, but do listen to all sides of a reasonable discussion. A good day for making long-range plans.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

You may run into some opposition, but don't counterattack. Remain calm, talk things over quietly, reasonably and fairly, and you can put over many a good point.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

You may have some "extras" to handle, but adapting yourself to circumstances could enable you to profit in a most heart-warming way.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Carry on with matters already "in the works" and don't delay your progress by going off on tangents. You may have a tendency toward restlessness now, but try to curb it.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Some complexities indicated in areas where you expected clarity. Study matters further, take all steps to avoid needless errors.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Look deeply into all situations. Surface appearances could be misleading. One more admonition: Do not make commitments which you may find it difficult to fulfill.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

A friendly day on the whole, but you will have to watch for little mistakes, hidden pitfalls. Your intuition and good judgment will be a big help.

Modern Fishing Boats Far Cry From Earlier Models

Not too many years ago, the typical fishing boat was a simple affair, powered by a small outboard and capable of only fairly slow speeds. But today, more and more fishermen are going to larger, faster boats with high horsepower motors, pedestal seats and other features which make fishing more enjoyable and efficient.

But these modern fishing boats can also be more dangerous. It's not that the rigs themselves are unsafe, but rather that the increased speed and power increases the potential for an accident if the boat is misused.

So with some fine spring fishing just around the corner, now would be a good time to review some of the principles of safe boating. After all, you don't want to drown yourself and miss the crappie runs.

First, don't get carried away by the current trend toward more and more power. If you must hang 200 horses over the transom, make sure that the boat is designed to handle that size motor. The safest practice, according to Doug Shoulders, Director of the Water Enforcement Division of the Kentucky Department of Transportation, is to follow the boat manufacturer's recommendations for maximum motor size. An overpowered boat, Shoulders says, causes loss of freeboard and erratic handling, greatly increasing the possibility of accidents.

Pedestal seats are comfortable and convenient for fishing, but both dangerous and illegal for running at speed. According to state law, boat passengers must be seated at or below the level of the gunwale while the boat is underway. This prohibition includes not only using pedestal seats, but also sitting on the gunwale, transom, the back of a regular seat, or in any other dangerous position.

Stick steering is inherently more dangerous than a steering wheel, Shoulders says, since the boat operator, if he should lose his balance, will instinctively try to regain it by pulling on the steering control, possibly throwing the boat into a sharp turn and catapulting the operator into the water. Although stick steering is not illegal (unless used in conjunction with a seat which extends beyond the gunwale of the boat), Shoulders feels that a wheel gives the operator much better control of the boat.

A "kill switch" although not required by law, is a recommended safety device on all boats, Shoulders says. This device, which plugs into the ignition system of the boat, will immediately shut off the engine should the operator be thrown from the boat.

With no one at the controls, any outboard powered boat will run in tight circles, sometimes striking those who have been thrown overboard. Thus the addition of a kill switch could turn a possibly fatal accident into merely a good dunking.

And speaking of dunkings, a personal flotation device (or PFD)—that's the official term for a life preserver these days—won't do much good if it's in the boat and you're in the water.

Wearing the PFD is particularly important in the early spring before the water warms up. In 50 degree water, even the strongest swimmer cannot last for more than a few minutes before the effects of the cold water start weakening him. And the added bulk of cool-weather garments presents another handicap to the person thrown overboard. Of course, children and non-swimmers should wear a PFD at all times. The law requires one coast guard-approved PFD for each person on board. For motor boats 16 feet long or longer the PFD must be the wearable type and boats of this size must also carry one throwable PFD.

Another thing to watch, particularly on the larger lakes, is the weather. High winds and waves can be a problem on any body of water, but the hazards are particularly acute on the "flatland" lakes in western Kentucky. Fishermen, particularly those in smaller boats, also need to watch out for commercial and pleasure boat traffic on the large lakes.

Remember too that there aren't many people on the lakes early in the spring, and help may not be as available as during the more crowded summer months. So it's a good idea to tell a family member or the dock operator the general area where you'll be fishing and the time you expect to return. This could prevent a chilly night on the water in case of motor failure or other trouble.

And there's one other safety device which belongs on every fishing trip—just good old fashioned common sense. Know your own capabilities and those of your equipment, don't take unnecessary risks, and think safety.

Wayne Darnell of Darnell Marine tried his luck out this week on crappie and came in with a boat load. Wayne limited out on crappie with several being in the slab size range. He was fishing in the Blood River area.

Local Man Attends "Camping in the Spirit of '76" Convention

Don Burchfield has returned from the National Convention of the American Camping Association, "Camping in the Spirit of '76," held last week in Philadelphia. Burchfield represented Land Between The Lakes Group Camps of which he is director.

The ACA Convention brought together in Philadelphia more than 2,000 camp directors and staff members representing over 3,000 agency, church and private-independent camps in the United States.

The Convention keynote was Nido Qubein, Editor-in-Chief of ADVENTURES WITH YOUTH magazine and recent recipient of the Outstanding Young Man of America award.

Other featured speakers were Judge Lisa A. Richette, author of The Throwaway Children, and Henry W. Taft, President of Outward Bound, Inc.

Mr. Burchfield also participated in special workshops designed to keep the camping profession up to date, and visited over 100 professional exhibits displaying the latest in supplies and services for organized camping.

Area bass and crappie fishing guide, John T. (Tommy) Phillips caught this nice stringer of crappie along with a sauger down in the Blood River area last Wednesday. Phillips says he feels crappie fishing will be better in Kentucky Lake this year than last. Phillips' son, Johnny Mac, looks on.

National Wildlife Week
March 14-20 1976

JOIN AND SUPPORT THE NATIONAL WILDLIFE FEDERATION AND STATE AFFILIATES

Wildlife Week 1976

A mallard hen and her young glide across a marshy area, symbols of what conservation is all about. The trusting little convoy, photographed by David G. Allen, shows what kinds of animals we aid when we "Save Our Wetlands." That is the slogan of the National Wildlife Federation's 39th annual National Wildlife Week, March 14-20, 1976.

"Save Our Wetlands" Theme Announced For 1976 National Wildlife Week Observed March 14-20

"Save Our Wetlands" will be the theme for the 39th annual National Wildlife Week.

More than 10 million students, teachers, and members of state and local conservation groups are expected to take part in the week-long nationwide observance from March 14 through 20, according to Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation, the 3.5-million-member conservation education organization that sponsors the event each year with its state affiliates.

"Wetlands are a priceless and irreplaceable part of our national heritage," said Kimball. "They are important not only to wildlife but to man. They support a vast range of plants and wildlife, they aid in the natural purification of our water supplies, they provide unique scenic and recreational areas, and a good part of our food supply."

"The problem with our wetlands," Kimball continued, "is that some developers regard them as wastelands, to be drained or filled, and 'improved' with buildings. We have bulldozed them and scarred them with draining ditches until wetlands cover just a fraction of the area they once occupied."

There are about 20 varieties of wetlands, including marshes, swamps, river deltas, estuaries, prairie potholes, lakes, streams, river bottomlands and farm ponds, Kimball pointed out. Nearly every part of the country has wetlands of one kind or another.

Although the definition of wetlands has varied over the years, the U. S. Soil Conservation Service once estimated the original, natural wetlands of the 48 mainland states at 127 million acres. Another federal agency, the Fish and Wildlife Service, estimated in 1956 that at least 45 million, or more than 35 per cent, of these acres had been drained, filled or otherwise destroyed.

Pending another land "inventory," there are no precise figures on what has happened to the remaining 82 million acres. But it seems safe to assume after 23 more years of intensive development, particularly in coastal areas, that more than half of the original wetland area has been lost forever.

One state, California, has already lost two-thirds of its marshland, according to an Environmental Protection Agency estimate, and another, Louisiana, is losing 16.5 square miles of marshland per year.

"The steady loss of wetlands habitat has been a major factor in lengthening our lists of threatened and endangered species," said Kimball. "We must preserve what is left and manage these precious areas in a responsible way. Everyone has a stake in saving our wetlands and that is why we chose this year's theme."

On the positive side, Kimball noted that about 22 million acres of wetlands are now being preserved by the federal and state governments and private organizations. "We are making some headway," he observed, "but much more needs to be done."

Bing Crosby is the honorary chairman of the 1976 observance. Mr. Crosby, who was also chairman in 1950, has had a long-time interest in waterfowl, which must have wetlands to survive. Crosby emphasized that this year's Wildlife Week is one in which many people can become involved. "Nearly every locality has some type of wetland nearby," he said. "Each of us can take stock of the wetlands around our communities and learn whether they are being protected or in danger of being destroyed. If they are threatened, we should find out how we can help save them."

The 1976 campaign to save wetlands is an encore of an earlier observance, for in 1955, the poster theme was "Save America's Wetlands." Twenty years later, conservationists are still struggling to save these priceless natural areas.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt proclaimed the first National Wildlife Week in 1938, also sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation. The first observance emphasized the need to preserve wildlife habitat, the key to wildlife survival.

National Wildlife Week since 1938 has focused on a variety of themes. In 1954, the call was for "Clean Water for All Americans." The 1952, 1953, 1956 and 1974 observances spoke for protection of endangered wildlife. In 1962, the theme was "Waterfowl for the Future." Preservation of wildlife habitat was the theme in 1975.

A hen mallard and her young are the stars of this year's Wildlife Week poster. The family group, gliding along in typical wetland habitat, symbolizes what we save when we "Save Our Wetlands."

"HARD TIMES"

The name, "Hard Times," was selected for the latest shoot held by the Jenny Ridge Bowhunters Society. It is my opinion that none of us really knew what "Hard Times" really were, until we had been through the wicked little course that the shoot committee had laid out through the back 40 at the new Murray-

Our shoot committee picked the meanest, roughest quarter mile of shooting ground that they could find within the confines of the new park. They found gullies, brush piles and shooting positions that required the shooter to be half mountain goat, to keep his feet, and half wildcat, to be mean enough to shoot the required three rounds to qualify for a trophy.

would have been in a true hunting situation. Let us say that it is difficult enough to shoot a course like this without thinking about going back and climbing those three tree stands for the third time.

We wanted it to be real. It was real. The only thing that didn't happen was none of the targets ran away. At times it would not have surprised me if the target I was drawing on had taken off on me! We wanted it to be real and it was real.

fingers of fatigue tighten around his body. Pride pushes him on to the next target. Determination draws arrow after arrow as the day winds down, until the last shaft has flown and it is over.

Yes, you must shoot a tournament by yourself, because only you can shoot your arrows. But, when you shoot a tournament like "Hard Times" with your bowhunting brothers you're not alone.

Everyone seemed to be looking out for the other

A study of concentration: Mike Wright, of the Jenny Ridge Bowhunters Society, puts all his effort into concentrating on one of the tree-stand targets during the "Hard Times" shoot held last weekend in the city park.

Calloway County Park complex.

When the plans for the "Hard Times" shoot were being drawn up, the membership decided that the conditions under which it was to be shot would be as close to hunting conditions as we could make them. I am here to tell you that the letter of the law was upheld!

There were ten targets spread out over the course; deer, turkeys, rabbits and squirrels. Although they were only cardboard replicas, the individual placement of each target made them as difficult to shoot as real game animals.

Three of the targets on the course were shot from tree stand positions, just as they

Fine Foto

Hold on Don: Don Hayes, one of the youngest of the Jenny Ridge bunch, is working to set up one of the tree-stands used in the club's shoot last week.

Jim McKay is an announcer for ABC's Wide World of Sports. Mr. McKay has built a reputation as a fine announcer because he does features like his recent Olympic piece on down-hill racers. He used a line frequently in that piece that sticks with me, McKay said, "you run the down-hill and you must run it by yourself."

When a bowhunter, or other archer, shoots a tournament, he is like the down-hill racer, in that, he must shoot it by himself.

The first arrows come easy because strength is at a peak. As the day wears on, the shooter begins to feel the shooters on his round. Words of praise and support passed back and forth as the groups moved down the course. Many times rival bowhunters talked the opposition through difficult shots. I think this is called true "brotherhood" in some circles.

"Hard Times" was a people watchers paradise. From the work crew that came out at eight o'clock in the morning, to the last target that was dragged out of the woods at seven o'clock that night, there were people doing things and really getting into what they were doing. That makes a neat afternoon for a confirmed people-watcher.

Fine Foto

Is there something wrong with this picture? Paul Myhill is obviously pretty deep in thought as he prepares to shoot at one of the targets at the JRBS "Hard Times" shoot held last weekend. Right-on Paul!

We never were able to get the winners together for a photo because all of them were busy working on the clean-up crew at the end of the shoot. That goes a long way toward telling you what kind of a crew the Jenny Ridge Bowhunters Society is.

Some of the "winners" received trophies for their scores, but everyone that shot the course and all those that worked to put it on were "winners" in more ways than one.

Any club is only as good as the members that make it up. We are lucky to have a membership that is willing to work to make the club better.

Last week's tournament was just one example of what people can do if they set their minds to a project and see it through to the end.

With this as a start we can only move on to bigger and better things in the near future.

If you shot in "Hard Times" you had to do it by yourself. You shot your own arrows and you walked on your own two feet. But, you went through with your brothers and shared fellowship that only a few people savor in a lifetime.

Good Luck and good bowhunting!

With a little help from our friends

EAST CALLOWAY ELEMENTARY PLANS LAB

The East Calloway Environmental Education Committee is in the process of putting together an outdoor environmental education laboratory on the school property at East Calloway Elementary School.

East's outdoor laboratory will be used as a setting for many different experiences that will relate the child's courses of study to his environment. It is the hope of the committee that each child will become more aware of himself and his environment and that through these activities his subject matter will have more meaning.

Several different stations are planned for the lab including a weather station, green house, tree study, pollution and other studies. Before this lab can become a reality a fence must be built on one side of the lab and it will cost $1,065.92!

Here is an excellent opportunity for area sportsmen's clubs to put a few green dollars into a project that will help the younger generation to better understand their environment so that they can be counted on to preserve it for those yet to come.

Donations will be accepted by Mrs. Pat Sieber, chairperson of the finance committee for the lab facility.

With a little help from our friends, we can all take an active part in what happens tomorrow.

Last week end Walter Wright from Madisonville gave me a good lesson on how to fish the ledges with a slip cork rig. I was fishing with the double hook crappie rig while running the trolling motor, reading the depth finder, and moving along a good ledge up on Demumbers Bay near Barkley Dam. Walter asked me how deep the ledge was beneath the boat. I told him that it dropped from 12 to 18 feet, so he slid the small cork up his line to about eleven feet. He baited the single crappie hook with a lively shiner. Then he dropped his line into the water and it slid down until the small cork rested atop the big slip-cork.

Soon that big shiny yellow cork disappeared, and Walter was wrestling with a big slab crappie which he promptly boated. He continued to fish in this manner using two poles rigged with slip-corks, and he caught as many fish as I did while fishing with two double hook rigs, but he got hung up a lot less.

So, I'm going to try my luck fishing out on the ledges with a slip cork rig.

+++ Come on out to the Crappie Seminar today at Murray Bait on Highway 94 East. It will begin around one o'clock and is free to all interested crappie fishermen. I'll be there along with several other local fishing enthusiasts who will help conduct the special topic sessions relating to almost all aspects of crappie fishing in the twin lakes. Ladies are also invited to attend this very informative seminar.

+++ Blood River is still producing some fine catches of crappie. Local fishermen have taken some near limit catches from the ledges there. Let's keep our fingers crossed that old Bloody will again become a crappie-bonanza as it was in the past. Also, Barkley Lake is still producing some fabulous catches of crappie.

Fisherman's Corner

By Ken Dean

One of the most effective ways to fish for crappie is with a slip cork rig. It is an ingenious set-up which can be tied onto a cane pole. All that is needed is a slip cork, a large lead sinker, a crappie hook, and a small cork. This rig can be used for fishing brush, treetops, stick-ups, or even ledges.

First, tie the line to your pole about half-way down and wrap it out to the end of the pole and tie it securely. Leave about twelve to fifteen feet of line to which you now slide the small cork up to the desired depth for fishing. This cork may be moved up or down easily until you find the best depth to catch fish.

Next slide the large slip cork up on the line. With pliers, carefully squeeze a long 1/4 ounce sinker onto the line about six inches from the end. Finally, tie a two or three-ounce crappie hook to the end of the line and your slip cork rig is ready for action.

Depicted here is the slip cork rig used for crappie fishing in the twin lakes. It may be fished at varying depths in brush, tree tops, stick-ups, or on the ledges.

Murray State Drops Pair Of Games, Season Record At 1-2

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor

It took just one day for the Murray State Thoroughbreds to accomplish something it took them nearly three weeks to do last season.

Last year, Murray raced off to a 29-1 start in posting a 40-9 season and winning 22 consecutive games at one time. It seemed, for a while, the 'Breds might never lose.

But Friday afternoon, Murray did something very unusual. The Thoroughbreds lost two games in one day and they now have a 1-2 season record.

In the opening contest, Murray dropped an extra inning battle, falling 8-7 to Iowa State. Then in the nightcap, the 'Breds fell 4-3 to Southwest Missouri.

But nobody is going to push the panic button yet on the 'Breds, who at one point last year were ranked as high as 12th in the nation. For one thing, all Murray must do this year to make the NCAA Playoffs is to win the conference. Last year, the record meant more because Murray was not assured of an automatic NCAA bid until the season was nearly over.

So for the present time, the non-conference games are just that: games.

Sophomore southpaw Greg Cruse started on the hill in the first contest and lasted through five innings before a four-run uprising in the top of the sixth chased the Goreville, Ill., native from the mound.

Murray led just once in the game. In the home half of the first, big Don Walker drilled a two-out double to score Jack Perconte who had reached on a single and the 'Breds went up 1-0.

Iowa State tied the game in the top of the second then scored a run in the third to go ahead.

Going into the bottom of the seventh, the 'Breds trailed 7-5. Freshman third baseman Clint Courtney led off with a single but was forced at second by Stan Geisler.

Geisler reached second on a throwing error and scored when David Hughes singled. The tying run crossed on an error by the shortstop on a grounder hit by John Siemanowski.

Neither team threatened in the eighth and then in the ninth, a homerun over the left field fence gave Iowa State the victory.

Walker, Courtney and Geisler all had two hits apiece for Murray State.

In the nightcap, Dick Allegretti worked the distance and took the loss, giving up three earned runs on just three hits.

Southwest Missouri scored three times in the first inning. A walk, a hit batsman and a three-run homer did the damage.

Murray added a single tally in the second on a single by former Murray High star catcher Mike Cathey. The 'Breds scored again in the fourth to make it 3-2 as Hughes, another former Tiger star, singled.

Southwest Missouri scored an unearned run in the top of the seventh and went up 4-2.

The first two men down in the Murray half of the final inning were retired then Walker stepped into one to become the first 'Bred to hit a homer this season. But the next man was retired and that was it.

Through their first three games, the 'Breds have had just 26 hits in 100 times at bat for a .260 average. Last year, as a team, Murray State hit .332 to lead the nation.

At 1 p.m. today, freshman southpaw Andy Rice of Evansville will get the mound assignment for the 'Breds against Southwest Missouri. In the second game, sophomore righthander Scott Durham of Mount Vernon, Ind., will be hurling for Murray.

Mike Not Concerned With Identity Problem--As Long As He's Winning

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mike Hill has an identity problem.

Everyone keeps mistaking him for his older brother Dave, a highly-successful albeit sometimes-controversial golf pro.

When Mike, a solid performer in his own right, took a share of the lead in a recent tournament, one national press service informed the world that Dave was tied for the top. And Dave wasn't even playing.

Almost daily, someone, often reporters, will approach him and start a conversation: "Say, Dave..."

"It doesn't bother me much anymore," Mike said Friday after again taking a lead, this time sole possession of the No. 1 position, in the $175,000 Greater Jacksonville Open. "Most of the time I don't even bother to correct them."

He shook his head. "I've been out here eight years and they still can't spell my name."

"But they get the name right on the checks. My wife and kids know who I am, and, I guess, that's all I care about."

Mike, a beer-truck driver before brother Dave talked him into joining the tour as a 29-year-old rookie in 1968, has collected two tour titles and was a consistent money winner until he was sidelined for 12 weeks by a serious leg injury sustained in a motorcycle accident on his farm near Jackson, Mich., last year.

He staked himself to a bid for a third title with a scramble 68—he came out of six sand traps without making a bogey—and a 137 total, seven under par for two trips over the surprisingly difficult, 7,143-yard Deerwood Club course.

"Until the last five or six holes I didn't play very good," Mike said. "I had a lot of fives, and I had to scramble a lot. I'm still not hitting the ball as good as I know I can hit it. I was lucky to be one under par after nine holes."

"But I'm putting pretty good. That's what makes the difference. If you're putting good, you can get away with a lot of weaknesses in the rest of your game. I don't mean I hit any really ugly old shots, but I didn't hit it as well as I can."

Hill, at 37 beginning to get a touch of gray in his dark hair, held a one stroke advantage over surprising Nate Starks, a skinny little guy who ranks as possibly the shortest hitter on the tour and a man who once lost his approved players' card for poor play on the tour.

Starks, one of the last men on the course, birdied the last hole for a 69 and a 138 total.

Just two strokes back of the lead at 139 was a group of six players headed by Hubert Green, a winner last week in the Doral Open. Green came

- 580C Construction King is designed to help increase return on your investment through maximum availability, utilization and versatility.
- Unitized main frame resists heavy shock loads, maintains power train alignment.
- Componentized power train permits servicing of individual components without disturbing the rest of the drive line. Simplifies servicing.
- 207 c.i.d., diesel engine, 55 SAE net hp. on torque converter drive model (50 SAE net hp., direct-drive model). Case-built for thorough combustion, fuel economy, long life.
- Standard 14' over-center backhoe with 21' 2.9" reach and 14' dig depth. Twin-boom cylinders, hydraulic-cushioned swing and hydraulic regeneration for fast, smooth cycling.
- Optional 14'-18' Extendahoe with hydraulic telescoping dipper allows you to: dig vertical holes; tunnel and undercut; excavate more trench from one position; dump spoil well away from trench; accurately spot pipe and materials, and provides up to 4' of extra reach and up to 4' of extra depth.
- Dual-position stabilizers can be set at right angles to excavate 180° right up to the machine. Or they can be angled 20° to the rear for heavy excavating or lifting.
- Backhoe latch and swing pin enable operator to release backhoe from or lock it into over-center transport position without leaving operator's platform.
- Over-center backhoe design shortens machine length and shifts weight forward for stability in loading and roading. Also provides increased ground clearance.

Ridley Helps Canucks Into 2-2 Tie With Atlanta Friday

By The Associated Press
As thankful as Curt Ridley was to be traded away from Atlanta, he was anything but gracious towards the Flames Friday night.

The 24-year-old netminder played his first game against his former teammates and held off a 16-shot third-period attack to help the Vancouver Canucks into a 2-2 tie.

"I was looking forward to this game," he said after facing 36 shots. "It was the first time I had ever played against the Flames, and if I had a choice I'd have to say I'd rather beat them than any ordinary team."

"The trade was the best thing that ever happened to me. They were set with (Dan) Bouchard and (Phil) Myre, and at Vancouver I've had a chance to play."

He played well enough—and the Flames played poorly enough—to ruin the evening for Atlanta Coach Fred Creighton.

"Games like that give me an ulcer," Creighton said after the Flames wasted a 2-0 lead and couldn't score on the power play in the closing two minutes.

"We had control of the puck and we let them off the hook. We let the tempo of the game get away."

Tom Lysiak had set a club record with his 30th goal and assist to build the home team's two-goal lead. The points gave him 78 for the season, one more than the team standard he set last year.

Montreal topped California 4-1 and Pittsburgh bombed Washington 7-3 in the evening's other National Hockey League games.

Barry Gibbs had the other goal for Atlanta. Ron Sedlbauer and Dennis Kearns scored for Vancouver in the game's last 10 minutes.

Canadiens 4, Seals 1

Guy Lafleur scored his 48th goal of the year to start Montreal on the way to its 15th straight unbeaten game. Yvan Cournoyer, Murray Wilson and Steve Shutt also counted for the Canadiens, who handed the Seals their fourth straight loss.

Penguins 7, Capitals 3

Andre Pronovost raised his season's goal total to 48 and Syl Apps accounted for five points as Pittsburgh routed Washington with four goals in the last 10 minutes of play.

Simple Sentence Is Key To Baseball Negotiations Status

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It is a simple sentence, buried in the bottom of the text of the Major League Players Association's response to the "best and final" collective bargaining agreement offer of the owners.

You could read right by it if you weren't careful, but it is the key to the current status of the negotiations.

In it, the players association agrees to accept "a mechanism, along the general lines proposed by the owners," to control the so-called "one-and-one" free-agent rights granted by an arbitrator and upheld by two federal courts.

Those rights could make every major league player a free agent in 1976 or 1977 depending on whether he signs a contract. About 160 players including stars such as Reggie Jackson, Rod Carew, Tom Seaver and Fred Lynn, have not signed and are in spring training camps after having their contracts renewed by their clubs.

The courts have concurred with the arbitrator who decided that renewal is for one year only and not one year at a time in perpetuity.

Throughout the negotiations until Monday's "final" offer, the owners had not accepted the "one-and-one" premise. Then, they softened that stance, offering free agency but tying it to restrictions that included a draft of the available players by the eight clubs with the poorest records.

That didn't satisfy the players totally, but they did not issue an outright rejection. "We wanted spring training camps opened and we didn't want to do anything that would inhibit that," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, explaining the conciliatory language of his group's resolution.

The executive board of the association called for renewed negotiations. And the union held out an olive branch with that simple sentence, accepting controls on the one-and-one free agency. Less than one hour later, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered the camps opened.

Apparently, the players will accept a free agent draft if the owners agree to expand the number of teams participating from the bottom eight to a more liberal 12 or 16.

That possibility probably was one of many alternatives discussed Friday when the Player Relations Committee huddled in New York to plan its next strategy. A spokesman for the management negotiating team called the meeting "an internal working session."

Its primary purpose was to prepare a presentation for today's joint meeting of the 24 major league clubs. Today's session is the first time the owners have met with their committee since last Monday's offer. Several owners have expressed displeasure at the lengths to which the negotiators went in an attempt to settle the dispute and that displeasure was likely to surface at this meeting.

Future strategy was expected to be molded at the meeting but no new talks are scheduled with the Players Association. It was expected that the two sides might sit down again to resume their contract negotiations on Sunday.

Semifinal Actions Begins In Girls State H. S. Tournament

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP) — Semifinal round action begins today in Kentucky Girls' State High School Basketball Tournament after Mason County, Louisville Butler, Louisville Sacred Heart and Russell posted quarterfinal victories Friday.

Mason County faces Butler in today's first semifinal game while Sacred Heart and Russell will battle it out in the second game.

The winners of today's two games will meet for the championship tonight at 8:10 EST in Eastern Kentucky University's Alumni Coliseum.

In quarterfinal action Friday night, 1st Region champs Russell led by as many as 17 points in the third quarter and staved off a late rally to defeat Sedalia 57-46.

Earlier in the day, Sacred Heart's Carla Amlung fired in 35 points and grabbed 20 rebounds as the Louisville school overwhelmed West Hardin 65-46.

6th Region champion Louisville Butler came on strong in the second half to defeat Covington Holy Cross 66-51 and Mason County came back to defeat Jenkins 57-53 in double overtime.

Russell easily took command in the first half of its game with Sedalia. Regina Carroll scored 15 points in the first half for Russell as her team led 32-17 at intermission.

Sedalia managed a comeback in the third quarter, outscoring Russell 17-12 behind the shooting of Jana Page, Andrea Morris and Jennifer Flood.

The losers came within four points at 50-46 with 1:50 remaining in the game.

Russell scored the last seven points to put the game away.

Carroll was Russell's leading scorer with 23 points. Peggy Iddings added 14 and Tammy Ward had 10.

Belinda Davidson scored 17 points for Sedalia.

Idiot Wind Bolling On Sports

By Ross Boling

We all suspected it was coming, it just remained to be seen how long it would take: Don Meredith, the dapper and drawing ex-Dallas Cowboy quarterback of Monday night football and "Whut'd ah tell ya Curt" fame is finally readying himself for the inevitable plunge into an acting career on NBC which was, though we did not know it at the time, one facet of the package deal he negotiated with that network before he jumped from ABC.

I don't know what the ultimate significance of this development is. It probably shows you how far up the ladder of success you can climb if you have a Southern accent and an awareness of how to use it in a really hunkered-down style of commentary, you all.

Whatever, Dandy Don remains the best thing to arrive on the broadcasting scene in a long time, since, in fact, the incomparable Dizzy Dean was singing the "Wabash Cannonball" to millions and committing all those lovable transgressions against the English language that provoked the ire of the bridge-club linguistic purists years ago.

The laid-back, mildly corpulent approach to broadcasting is not without an obvious listener appeal. The year after Meredith made his big splash playing Howard Cosell's foil on Monday night football, CBS, with quicksilver alacrity, enlisted the services of a host of Southerners including, Kentuckian, Paul Hornung, Alex Hawkins who hails from Texas and Sonny Jurgenson, a native of North Carolina among others. John Brodie has been meticulously studying the nuances of the Southern drawl for the last three years in Meredith's shadow at NBC and, when another Southerner is not around, is pretty convincing at it.

Meredith, however, is by far the best of them. His style is less affected, he possesses a mischievous sense of humor which the others noticeably lack, and, in general, exudes a very pleasing and infectious audio-visual presence.

Let's not forget either (as many forgot that Dizzy, besides being the character's character, was also one of the greatest pitchers in the history of baseball) that Dandy Don was a darn good quarterback in the middle and late sixties. He appeared in the NFL Pro Bowl a couple of times and still holds a number of Dallas club records, a few of which are rather dubious ones like most fumbles in one season by a quarterback and most times sacked in one game. He was not at all brilliant, but he was consistent, an accurate passer and a wily playcaller in the days before Tom Landry decided to call all of the Cowboy's plays.

And now it looks as if Meredith will soon land a regular part in some upcoming series on NBC and might even forfeit his place on the NBC broadcasting team if the series requires it. I can already imagine the plot lines: a former professional quarterback from the South retires, becomes a broadcaster with down-home inflections and is satisfied with his life but from week to week is inexorably drawn into the activity of saving countries, cities and individuals from various disasters like earthquakes, tidal waves, towering infernos, plagues, exploding blimps and sinking ships and ultimately, as the show concludes its 20th season on the air, he becomes the president of NBC, which, though we were not aware of it at the time, was yet another facet of the package deal he negotiated with that network before he left Howard Cosell.

Win Would Mean Two-Year Ride For Lennie Pond At Atlanta

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — A victory in Sunday's Atlanta 500 stock car race would mean almost $170,000 to Lennie Pond. However, anything less than first would net the likable, balding Virginian less than $10,000.

"That's all I've thought about lately," said Pond, a former NASCAR Grand National rookie of the year who is still gunning for his first victory on the circuit. "But if I'm gonna win here, I've gotta get a lot of speed or a lotta luck before Sunday."

"My car is just not running here. I'm almost 1 1/2 seconds off the pace."

The purse for the 17th annual Atlanta 500 is $151,900, and first place pays $15,750. But victory would also include Pond for this year and next in NASCAR's lucrative Winner's Circle Award program for race winners.

Current members are seven of the first eight qualifiers for Sunday's race—Dave Marcis, David Pearson, Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough, Benny Parsons, Buddy Baker and Bobby Allison. One more spot is available and Pond is considered the best bet.

"In round figures, it's worth about $82,000 next year and about $70,000 this year," Pond explained. "So if I can do it, I can get a two-year ride."

It looked as if Pond had it

Retired coach John Wooden led UCLA to the NCAA basketball crown 10 times in the past 12 seasons.

Ed Jucker coached Cincinnati to the 1961 and 1962 NCAA basketball titles, his team beating Ohio State both times in the final.

Don Bitterlich of Temple University led the nation's collegians in field goals last season with 21 in 31 attempts.

Jack Nicklaus has won the PGA player of the year award four times since 1967.

made two weeks ago in the Grand National race at Richmond, Va. But with a decisive lead late in the race, Pond and Ed Negre collided, and Pond was out of the race.

"You can't believe how much I've thought about it," Pond said wistfully. "When I hit the wall at Richmond, I figured it cost me about $170,000," including first place money and repairs to his battered Chevrolet.

But he added, "It was just one of those things. Negre didn't see me. He came up on me as I went by. We hooked bumpers and it shot me into the wall."

Pond sits 10th in the 36-car grid, with a qualifying speed of 156,005 miles per hour, compared to Marcis' pace-setting 160,709 m.p.h.

"I'm not so concerned about the difference in speed," Pond noted, "because luck is better than speed."

"You can go 160 m.p.h. for 490 miles and lose the race. You gotta go the whole 500. That's where I could use a little luck."

A Lot Of Kentucky In Both Teams As UK Meets Charlotte

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "This game is like a family affair," said Kentucky Coach Joe B.

Hall, contemplating Sunday's final of the National Invitation Tournament against North Carolina-Charlotte. "We're pretty much in-bred—there's a lot of Kentucky in both these teams."

A lot of Kentucky in North Carolina-Charlotte? You bet. Lee Rose, coach of the 49ers, spent seven years coaching at Transylvania, a college division school in Lexington, Ky., which just happens to be where the University of Kentucky is located. Mike Pratt, Rose's assistant, played at Kentucky under Coach Adolph Rupp.

"We're close, very close," said Rose at a news conference Friday. "Joe Hall and I are both a couple of farm boys. We've known each other for many years now. We worked in the same area, we recruited the same kids—there's a lot between us."

Matter of fact, Rose has as much Kentucky in him as any colonel.

"As a kid I used to sell soda during Kentucky games at the Coliseum," said Rose. "There were times I used to sneak in just to see the great Wildcats play under Coach Rupp. I'd hang from the rafters just to see them play."

For the past 11 years, Rose and Hall have been members of the Crestwood Christian Church in Lexington, Ky.

"I'm on the fund-raising committee," said Rose, "and he (Hall) hasn't paid his dues. I wonder who David Blondell, our minister, is going to be praying for?"

"I got to him first," countered Hall. "He's our team chaplain. He eats breakfast with the team before all our games. He's flying down here for the final—at my request."

Sunday's final matches one of the most prestigious names in college basketball, Kentucky, against a growing school hungry for recognition. "With all the ACC schools around us," said Rose, "we don't get much ink. We're trying to build our program, and being here in the finals of the NIT against a team like Kentucky is just great. Win or lose, we're winners already just being here."

Both clubs won one-point thrillers in Thursday's semifinals. Kentucky edged Providence 79-78 on Larry Johnson's court-length drive and layup with one second to go, while UNC-Charlotte beat North Carolina State 80-79 on Melvin Watkins' basket with 30 seconds left.

To beat Kentucky, UNC-Charlotte, 24-5, will need another big game from Cedric Maxwell, the 6-foot-8 center who has averaged 28.3 points and 10.2 rebounds in three NIT starts. His 39 free throws—in 43 attempts—are already a tournament record, and he also had blocked eight shots, stole the ball seven times and handed out nine assists.

But he'll have his hands full when he goes against burly 6-11 center Mike Phillips of Kentucky, 19-10. Despite a sprained ankle, Phillips has been a dominating player under the boards.

"There's no way I can out-muscle him," said Maxwell of the key match-up. "I'll just have to use whatever speed I've got and try to out-hustle him."

How well he succeeds will go a long way in determining the outcome of the family squabble known as the 39th annual NIT.

Presbyterians Plan Youth Day Sunday

The young people of the First Presbyterian Church will have complete charge of the service of worship this Sunday, March 21. The entire service was written by the youth as their expression of the Christian faith.

The Scripture readings will be Ecclesiastes 3:1-8, read by Anne Gregory; and Ephesians 6:1-4, read by Kirk Johnson.

The sermon will be a dialogue sermon by Brenda Hough and Sally Matarazzo on the topic "You're Listening...But Do You Hear?"

Other young people assisting in the service are: Paul Guy, Tim Robertson, Heather Kodman, Brook Dickson, Andy Wilson, Peggy Guy, Kevin Geurin and Amanda Holt.

Music for the service was specially composed by Carl Mowery. Under the direction of Kathy Mowery the Youth Band will accompany the hymns and provide special music.

Members of the Youth Band are: Flutes - Brenda Hough, Audrey Conley, Allison Wallace, and Paul Moffett; Clarinets - Anne Gregory and Sally Matarazzo; Trumpets - Linus Kodman and Becky Hough; Horn - Heather Kodman; Baritone - Frankie Kodman; and Tuba - Kevin Geurin.

Jim Wright is the church organist.

Church School classes will be at 9:30 a.m. The service of worship will be at 10:45 a.m. A nursery is provided.

Services Planned

At Memorial Church

The Memorial Baptist Church will hear the pastor, Rev. Jerrell White, speak at both the 10:50 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. services on Sunday, March 21.

Rev. Ron Hampton, minister of music, will direct the Sanctuary Choir in special music with Mrs. Margaret Wilkins as organist and Mrs. Diane Dixon as pianist.

Tommy Wilkins, deacon of the week, will assist in the morning services.

Sunday School will be at 9:40 a.m. Willard Alls will speak on "Use of Alcohol and Tobacco" at Church Training at 5:30 p.m.

Bro. John Dale To Speak At Church Of Christ Sunday

Bro. John Dale will speak at both the 10:40 a.m. and six p.m. services on Sunday, March 21, at the Seventh and Poplar Church of Christ.

"Rocking The Boat" will be the subject of the morning sermon with Jim Wilson to read the scripture from I Corinthians 1:10 and Ken Hopkins and Mark Riley to lead in prayers.

The evening sermon topic will be "Jesus Both Did and Taught" with scripture from Acts 1:1-2 to be read by Paul Kelly. Prayers will be led by Audrey Hatcher and E. C. Wallin.

Jerry Bolls will direct the song service and Johnny Bohannon will make the announcements.

Presiding for The Lord's Supper will be Wayne Hopkins and Jerry Howard. Gary Lamb, James Lamb, Emmanuel Manners, and Nuel McNutt will serve on the Extension Department. Bible Study will be at 9:40 a.m.

The Wednesday classes will be dismissed so that members may attend the meeting at the University Church of Christ at seven p.m.

Sigma Scholarship Applications Due

Applications for the Glenda Boone Scholarship, given annually by the Sigma Department of the Murray Woman's Club, should be submitted to the School Relations Office or Dr. John Taylor's office at Murray State University by April 1.

Winner of the scholarship will be notified by May 1, according to Mrs. Morgan Sisk, Sigma Scholarship chairman.

Regular Services Sunday At First Baptist Church

Dr. Bill Whitaker, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will speak at both the 10:45 a.m. and seven p.m. worship services on Sunday, March 21.

"Lend A Hand—This Fellow Is Heavy" will be the morning sermon topic with scripture from Mark 2:1-4. The evening topic will be "If My People Pray" with scripture from II Chronicles 7:14.

Gus Robertson, Jr., will direct the music on Sunday while Bro. W. Rudolph Howard is with the Sing and Tell group in concert at Memphis, Tenn. The Adult Choir will sing at both services with the Ladies Trio to sing at the evening service.

Homer Miller, deacon of the week, will assist in the morning services along with Bro. G. T. Moody, minister of education.

Taking the offering on Sunday will be Paul Lyons, Ron Wright, Terry Denton, Vernon Nance, Charles Holland, Rudolph Smith, and Billy J. Puckett.

Widows Of Men Killed In Mine To Be Eligible For Death Benefits

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Widows and other relatives of 11 men killed in a mine explosion in Eastern Kentucky last week will be eligible for death benefits as soon as Gov. Julian Carroll signs emergency legislation passed by the Kentucky General Assembly.

John Nichols, Carroll's press secretary, said the governor would sign the bill as soon as possible, maybe today.

Currently, the widows of the dead miners are not eligible for the death benefits because death certificates have not been issued. Under state law a coroner must view a body before certificates can be issued.

The bodies of the 11 men killed after entering the Scotia Coal Co.'s Black Mountain Mine on March 11 are still entombed in the shaft, hundreds of feet below the surface. Federal officials have refused to allow rescue teams to reenter the No. 1 shaft to retrieve the bodies.

The 11 men were part of a 13-man team that entered the shaft to shore up the roof in an area of the mine where an explosion two days earlier had killed 15 men.

Two of the 13 men escaped, but the other 11 were killed. Federal and state officials pulled rescue teams out of the mine as soon as the bodies were discovered.

Officials of the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA) said there was a dangerous buildup of methane gas in the mine. State Commissioner of Mines and Minerals H. N. Kirkpatrick said the rescue team was not allowed.

Episcopal Church Plans Services

St. John's Episcopal Church, Main and Broach Streets, will have Holy Communion at the 10:30 a.m. services on Sunday, March 21. Rev. Stephen Davenport is church vicar.

Church School and Adult Class will be at 9:15 a.m. Serving as acolytes will be Ben Moore, Shore, and Vincent Heise. Mrs. Leonard Whitmer is organist.

Claudia Moore will be in charge of the nursery.

Dr. Fisher To Be Speaker At First Methodist Church

Dr. James A. Fisher, Sr., minister of the First United Methodist Church, will speak at the 8:45 and 10:50 a.m. services on Sunday, March 21. "They Were Astonished" will be the subject of his sermon with his scripture from Mark 10:17-27.

Margaret Porter will be guest soloist at the 8:45 service and her selection will be "Break My Heart." The Chancel Choir will sing the anthem, "O Saviour of the World" at the later service.

Evening services will be held at seven p.m. Both the Junior and Senior High United Methodist Youth Fellowship groups will meet at 5:30 p.m. followed by programs and supper.

allowed to remove the 11 bodies because it was too dangerous, that the mine could "blow at any time."

The mine has been sealed and officials say it will be at least two months and possibly longer before the 11 bodies can be recovered.

Under the emergency bill, passed Friday by the Senate, a coroner would be allowed to issue a death certificate without viewing the body, under certain conditions.

The coroner could issue a

Weavings Of Emily Wolfson Will Be Displayed At Berea Gallery

Recent weavings by Murray fibre worker Emily Wolfson will be displayed in the Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen's office gallery during April. The office gallery, at 213 Chestnut Street in Berea, is open 8 to 12 and 1 to 4 weekdays and by appointment at other hours.

Weavings included in the show were completed during the past 12 to 18 months. Mrs.

Burkeen. . .

An avid sports fan, Burkeen would often go to baseball games and watch from his parked car—if he could find a parking place that gave him a view of the field. If not, he could not watch and had to leave. And it troubled him to be so dependent.

Then one day he saw Wanda Rolfe of Murray getting her wheelchair out of her car without any assistance and he told himself, "If Wanda can do it, I can too."

He went home and there, all alone, worked for more than two hours mastering the technique of getting the wheelchair in and out of his car. Now Burkeen comes and goes as necessary without always having to depend on others.

Along with determination to become more self-sufficient, he has found the accessibility steadily improving on the campus for those with handicaps.

"People are genuinely interested and willing to cooperate," Burkeen observed, "and that's a great help. Twice I have asked that ramps be built in specific locations, and within the next, day or two, they were ready for us."

Following graduation, Burkeen will continue working for the local grain and seed company where he has been employed on a part-time basis while attending college. A new office being constructed for him there will also serve as his headquarters for the tax work he plans to do.

As conversation turns to Burkeen's accomplishments, he always talks freely about the "breaks" that have come his way—the scholarship, the rehabilitation services, the cooperation on the campus in removing physical barriers, and the job that awaits his graduation.

But that extra something deep down inside Jerry Mac Burkeen that is never translated by him into words has to be the biggest "break" of all.

death certificate "in the absence of the body provided its identity and location are established or death was caused by fire, explosion or related causes in an underground passageway."

The provision was added to a bill completely unrelated to mining in order to help the widows and relatives of the 11 men.

Officials have blamed methane gas for both of the fatal blasts.

The bodies of the first 15 men killed in the mine were recovered. Volunteers have been refused permission to go into the mine to recover the last 11 bodies.

It was the second piece of legislation passed in as many days relating to the Owen Fork mine disasters.

On Thursday, the Senate passed a bill designed to protect miners from similar explosions. That piece of legislation would require that all underground mines be classified as "gassy," meaning methane gas could be found in them.

Under that bill, more frequent inspections of mines susceptible to buildups of methane would be required. The governor said earlier this week that he wanted the bill amended to require that all "gassy" mines be checked daily for methane.

State Sen. Bert Ed Pollette, D-Harlan, said that was not possible because there are not enough mining inspectors in Kentucky to make daily checks at all underground mines below the water table.

However, the bill passed Thursday would require inspections "as often as practical whenever any danger to workmen is indicated by a previous inspection."

Mrs. Wolfson, a former president and life member of the Guild, is nationally recognized for her weaving skills; her works are included in the collections of the Chicago Art Institute, Brooks Museum, Berea College, Murray State University, and Kentucky Arts Commission.

A Henderson County native, Emily Wilson Wolfson studied painting and sculpture at Tulane and Louisiana State University; painting in Paris, France on a Wooley Fellowship; and design at the Chicago Institute of Design. Weaving study was with Gladys Brophill in Michigan and Sirri Lehtimäki in Helsinki, Finland.

Mrs. Wolfson taught at the Evansville Museum, Evansville College, Indiana University, and most recently at Murray State University. Her husband, Alfred, is Professor Emeritus of Biology at Murray.

She has served two terms on the Kentucky Guild Board of Trustees, including two years as president. She has served as Kentucky's Representative to the American Crafts Council, and is secretary of the Quicksand Craft Center in Vest, Ky. where she has also taught workshops in weaving.

ARE THEY THINNER? SEATTLE (AP) — Pacific Northwest families spend less each week for food than their Eastern counterparts. They also spend less in restaurants and show a growing preference for seafood restaurants when they decide to dine out.

And Northwest families hold more outdoor barbecues, three a week, than households anywhere else in the country including California.

These figures and other food facts resulted from a recent study by Esmark, Inc., a Chicago-based company. The study also shows that Northwest families spend about $32.60 a week for food, compared with $34 spent by Eastern families.

Ben Franklin said, "He that can have patience can have what he will."

Dr. David C. Roos Will Speak For Christian Church

Dr. David C. Roos, minister of the First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) will speak on the subject, "Blessed Are the Pure In Heart," at the 10:45 a.m. services on Sunday, March 21, at the church.

The Chancel Choir, directed by Margaret Porter with Gary Galloway as organist, will sing the anthem, "Lamb of God."

Dr. William Seale will be worship leader with Rita Egnor and Amy Roos as candle lighters for this third Sunday in Lent. Greeters will be J. Robert Skinder and Dr. A. H. Tittsworth.

Elders serving will be John Pasco and Frank Wainscott. Serving as deacons will be Norman Hale, Glenn Card, Fred McCord, Leon Smith, Auburn Wells, and Lennel Yates.

The Junior Choir will meet at 5:30 p.m. Sunday for practice following the supper at six p.m. for the God Squad who will meet at 6:30 p.m.
